THE RISEN CHRIST

In this Sunday's first reading and Gospel we see Peter and the other disciples in action after the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ. On trial, they refused to stop teaching in Jesus' name, and they rejoiced at the opportunity to suffer for their beliefs. On the lake and its shore, face to face with the Risen Lord, they obeyed his directions and recognized him as he once again ate a meal with them. There are so many human and almost homey touches in these readings! The high priest in the first scene sounds as if he is scolding naughty students. There is an order to stop speaking in Jesus' name, but it is evident everyone knows they will disobey again. And on the lake shore, we can imagine Peter's excitement as he strides out of the water and is greeted by Jesus, who grins and says, "Come, have breakfast."

The second reading, on the other hand, is anything but homey. In this passage from Revelation, John describes a scene in which the same Lord who fed his friends breakfast here

The following article that appeared in an Argentina paper gives us a glimpse into the humble simplicity of Pope Francis. Buenos Aires, Argentina, Mar 21, 2013 / 01:01 pm (EWTN News/CNA)

Pope Francis surprised the owner of a kiosk in Buenos Aires with a telephone call to send his greetings and explain that he will no longer need a morning paper delivered each day. Around 1:30 p.m. local time on March 18, Daniel Del Regno, the kiosk owner's son, answered the phone and heard a voice say, "Hi Daniel, it's Cardinal Jorge." He thought that maybe a friend who knew that the former Archbishop of Buenos Aires bought the newspaper from them every day was pulling a prank on him. Seriously, it's Jorge Bergoglio, I'm calling you from Rome," the Pope insisted. "I was in shock, I broke down in tears and didn't know what to say," Del Regno told the Argentinean daily La Nacion. "He thanked me for delivering the paper all this time and sent best wishes to my family."

Del Regno shared that when Cardinal Bergoglio left for Rome for the conclave, he asked him if he thought he would be elected Pope. "He answered me, 'That is too hot to touch. See you in 20 days, keep delivering the paper.' And the rest is, well, history," he said.

"I told him to take care and that I would miss him," Del Regno continued. "I asked him if there would ever be the chance to see him here again. He said that for the time being that would be very difficult, but that he would always be with us." Before hanging up the phone, he added, the Pope asked him for his prayers.

Daniel's father, Luis Del Regno, said they delivered the paper to the former cardinal's residence every day. On Sundays, he said, the cardinal "would come by the kiosk at 5:30 a.m. and buy La Nacion. He would chat with us for a few minutes and then take the bus to Lugano, where he would serve mate (tea) to young people and the sick."

Among the "thousands of anecdotes" the elder Del Regno remembers is one involving the rubber bands that he put around the newspapers to keep them from being blown away when they were delivered to the cardinal. "At the end of the month, he always brought them back to me. All 30 of them!"

He said he gets goose bumps whenever he thinks about Pope Francis' simplicity. "In June he baptized my grandson, it was an amazing feeling," Del Regno said. "I know what he's like. He's one of a kind."

*Father went to visit an elderly woman from our Parish last week.
As he sits on her couch he notices a large bowl of peanuts on the coffee table in front of him.
"Mind if I have a few?" he asks.
"No, not at all!" she replies.
They chat for a while and as Father stands to leave,
he realizes that instead of eating just a few peanuts,
he has emptied the bowl.
"I'm terribly sorry for eating all of your peanuts," he said,
"I really just meant to eat a few."
"Oh, that's all right," she said,
"Ever since I lost my teeth
all I can do is suck the chocolate off of them."*
